

I deliver fire trucks and cement mixers all over the country. I save time and fuel by listening to the local traffic reports in the major cities on my XM radio. I can adjust my route according to the traffic patterns in the areas I travel through. Very few of the trucks that I deliver have a conventional radio, and the small portable radios don't always work well. It is also unsafe to be constantly changing stations on a conventional radio trying to find out the local traffic conditions. Let us have our satellite radio.

I also like the fact that I don't have to listen to lame commercials on most of the stations, as well as to be able to listen to CNN, CNBC and other talk/news stations.
